OH, WINNIE!

Verse by Carolyn Wells

The big parade was coming, and a solid human mass
Was lined along the curbstone, so nobody could pass.
"Oh, dear!" sighed pretty Winnie Wynne; "I don't know what to do!
I'll ask this kind policeman; I'm sure he'll let me through."

"No, miss, you can't go through them lines," the big policeman said.
"Oh, but I MUST!" cried Winnie, tossing her willful head.
"You see, I've an appointment at exactly 10 o'clock
With Madame Frills, who's making me the most exquisite frock!"

"It ain't no use, miss," he declared; "my orders is severe."
A faint smile hovered 'round her mouth, just ready to appear.
"I MUST be there at 10 o'clock!" "Here, stop this nonsense, miss!"
The gruff policeman stormed and growled, "You get right out o' this!"

Then Winnie smiled upon him! Her dainty, flower-like face
Flashed like a captive sunbeam caught in a cloud of lace.
Her dimples twinkled in and out—her eyes began to dance;
The big policeman stood and stared, like some one in a trance.

Whiz! Zip! he dashed into the crowd! He waved his powerful stick;
He pushed the people right and left, and did it double-quick!
And Winnie followed in his wake, sweet, smiling and demure,
Murmuring in her gentle voice, "I thank you, sir, I'm sure!"

"I'm proud to be of service, miss! You're welcome, miss! Good day!"
He stammered out, bewildered, as Winnie tripped away.
Defiantly he glanced around, half scared at what he'd done;
But Winnie wished to win her way, and winsome
Winnie won!

Killed 300,000 people at least

Round-the-World Search to Find and Kill Zia Bey, the Turkey, Whose Wholesale Butcheries Precipitated the Turk Has Crushed the Infamous Sultan, Released the Captives

THE astonishing resolute which has just taken place in Turkey is brought more vividly before the minds of Americans by the news that Zia Bey, the Sultan's chief spy and assassin, the virtual murderer of 300,000 people, has been killed from vengeance in the United States. Being from head to foot in New York and under the eye, consumed to perpetual sleeplessness by fear of those whom he had betrayed, tortured, robbed or killed.

Never were so many strange and peculiar occurrences associated with any revolution as with that which has just past in the despotism of the Sultan Abdul Hamid, of Turkey—called by the late Mr. Gladstone "Abdul the Damned."

For about thirty years a despotism more bloody than any recorded in history has been flourishing at the very doors of civilized Europe and within easy observation of the United States. Most of us have read with awe-stricken wonder about the persecutions of the Christians under cruel laws, but really their sufferings at that remote period were less than they have been in Turkey in our own times.

One of the many astonishing facts we now witness is that the tremendous machinery of slaughter, torture and oppression built up by the Sultan has been suddenly and completely swept away in a single day and replaced by a government that is practically "When the great anchor of the Atlantic liner was hauled up from the muddy bottom of the Bosphorus, the sailors were horror-stricken to find that they had drawn up with it two corpses, which had caught in one of the flukes. The bodies were chained back to back, and from the expression of their faces it was evident that they had suffered terrible tortures, and had only recently been drowned."

a republic and is as liberal and enlightened as any in the world.

Turks who before the revolution were liable to lose their lives and property for speaking of the Sultan without terms of service respect are now at liberty to criticize him in the most heated manner and by 500,000 of the people whom he had formerly robbed and oppressed in every conceivable way. Never was a stranger and more irrational spectacle witnessed in the history of the world.

Of all the amazing facts concerning the Sultan's tyranny none disclosed perhaps the most amazing is the discovery that his atrocities were carried out principally for the sake of money. We used to think of the Sultan as a bloodthirsty Mohammedan fanatic, and with the desire to kill those whom he considered infidels, but now we find that although religious fanaticism was a factor, it was not the main motive. The Sultan was just greedy for money. The Sultan's fate, which was just good for money. The Sultan's fate, which was just good for money.

The King and the Czar came to an agreement which would have resulted in virtually destroying the sovereignty of Turkey in Europe. Now the Young Turks and the reformers are partitioned, and they do not wish to see the Empire dismembered. They therefore decided that the revolution must be declared at once in order to save the Empire from ruin and that they might make themselves responsible for the reforms demanded by the civilized Powers.

At this point Major Haver Ahmed, a very popular member of the Young Turk party, was ordered to report to the Sultan at Constantinople. This meant that he would find a watery grave in the Bosphorus with a weight tied to his feet or a violent death in some other way. He had been denounced by his own brother-in-law, Dr. Nuh Bey, one of the Sultan's principal agents at Salonika.

Zia Bey and his friends at once defied the Sultan. The other reformers supported him and the revolution took place at once.

The day after the Sultan had been forced to sign the new Constitution he was chained in the streets by 500,000 of the people whom he had formerly robbed and oppressed in every conceivable way. Never was a stranger and more irrational spectacle witnessed in the history of the world.

AHMED BEY.
THE REAL LEADER
REVOLUTION

How the Sultan's Soldiers Treated the Leading Citizen of Erzeroum.

The Turkish press, which had been nothing but a mouthpiece for the Sultan's wishes, was suddenly freed by the revolution. We may judge of its freedom by the contents of the first caricature published in Turkey. It represents the Sultan as a dirty, fat, and balding man, with a basket picking up the late splot and spittle of the Sultan like pieces of dirt and rubbish, and saying to himself, "How dirty is the Sultan, and what they are too dirty to be touched except with gloves."

There the revolution a Turk could not spend even carelessly, of the Sultan without danger of losing his life. No freedom of speech is entirely so good as that which makes officials an agent of the Sultan as an assassin.

Just How to Tone Up Faded Locks, Ward Off Premature Grayness and Make the Hair Look Positively Brilliant.

By Madame Helene Levasseur, Celebrated Parisian Beauty Director.

Women are not so much interested in the hair, the picture of a woman's face, as they are in the hair. It is the hair that makes a woman's face so attractive. It is the hair that makes a woman's face so attractive. It is the hair that makes a woman's face so attractive.

It is always an error to change the style of hair dressing at least once in six months. This is particularly important for women who have short hair. It is better to keep the same style for a long time than to change it frequently.

One woman recently came to me with hair that looked like the weather-beaten shingle of an old house. It was not only gray and thin, but it was also very dry and brittle. I advised her to use a special hair oil and to brush her hair gently with a soft brush.

It is not only the hair that makes a woman's face so attractive, but it is also the hair that makes a woman's face so attractive. It is the hair that makes a woman's face so attractive. It is the hair that makes a woman's face so attractive.

The Elizabethan Ruff (First Worn By Men in 1600) Now Adorns Women's Necks.

How John D. Rockefeller Would Look Wearing a Ruff.

MADAME LA MODE, who lives in Paris in the most expensive street in the world, the Rue de la Paix, told this to say for herself, when I asked her the subject of the advent of the Elizabethan ruff.

The new ruff shown in the illustration on this page is made of finest black cotton. It is sewn at the top of a moderately high-collared dress, and set off by the right sort of face. It possesses that combination of quaintness and smartness which is so unusual and hard to secure.

The Elizabethan Ruff in Its Latest Form.

A Spanish Nobleman of the Sixteenth Century Adorned With the Ruff.

Spitting the Temples to Prevent Baldness.

The ruff is only the hair in that it is made of the same material—net, lace, hair, muslin, or something of the sort. The ruff is a sort of collar, made of a mesh of hair and is set off by a half to two inches wide. It is a very simple and elegant collar, and it is a very good way to prevent baldness.

Collars have been so numerous this summer that some ordinary individuals have failed to notice the appearance of a small experiment at the top of the fashionable dress. But, now that the ruff is so common, it is a very good way to prevent baldness. It is a very simple and elegant collar, and it is a very good way to prevent baldness.

Why I Wrote "The Devil"

By Molnar i.e.v.

(Ha Huanan) it is customary in society here to write the family name first. Hence, though we in America know the now famous author of "The Book" as Percival D. Wren, I am confident in the Middle East, I should say Wright's.

In the text of "The Book," I have written a few lines of explanation of these customs for the benefit of the reader. I know that some of you will find this explanation of the custom of the Middle East to be a little bit too long, but I have included it for the sake of the few who are not familiar with the custom. I have also included a few lines of explanation of the custom of the Middle East to be a little bit too long, but I have included it for the sake of the few who are not familiar with the custom.

That is, civility and right theory but in real life, ever since Noah's ark—rescued from the Ark and smelled the fresh air on earth and filled their lungs with sweet, balmy air, came from the covetous desire to have more than what they were decreed to write such a story, and hence, "The Devil."

I have been greatly amused by the several arguments about the cause of "The Devil's" success, which are certain to be as dark as the "hell" lamp in the middle of a dark hall. The reason of my play's success in 1906—"I don't care whether you call it animal love, passion, intrigue or even unrequited attachment—is that I was writing of a certain man for a certain woman—her neighbor's wife or what not—but I am desirous to feel her arms wrapped

But the Devil must not be taken as a justification of immorality. In drawing His Supreme Majesty I have attempted to represent him as the spirit of Malice. I have not said that he exists in the world of Evil Men, but the young artist, I think, has his reason's self-will, and I think he has spoken his truth. I have given him, step after step,

When I first read the manuscript of

HOWLIN

The Devil! It struck me that many persons of the play, in which this Satanic Majesty is employed, were a little too broad for presentation before a representative American audience. Dr. Miller, as the Devil is called in Molnar's piece, speaks his mind with the most excessive frankness. He cuts a spade a spade; in fact, Yorl, when I occupied an orchestra chair at the Garden Theatre and witnessed Mr. Edwin Stinson's wonderful presentation of the role. I was surprised to discover that the lines when spoken on the stage did not seem so good as when one read them in the manuscript.

I said: It is just the other way. In analyzing the effect and making the reason for it, one finds that an audience is prepared to reward the most successful of the things which are said, while it punishes the least successful. It is a doctrine that seems, to say the least, a little strange, the audience is not offered the concepts of the functionary, but the functionary is made to live in the audience's daily life.

Stinson is a great poet and a great poet.

Water Changed Into Wealth and Happiness

ET us talk and think to-day about the great work that the American nation is doing—that intelligent nations all over the world are doing—in the irrigation of arid lands. This matter MUST interest you as an earnest, thoughtful citizen. Each of us, as faithfully as he can, is doing his little work in his little corner. It is inspiring to think that this nation as a whole, and the human race as a whole, are working at the big, earth-improving tasks.

Formerly human beings worked separately as individuals, painfully accumulating a little wealth. The nation, the tyrannical governing power, exploited and squandered the wealth, intelligence and life of the individual.

What a contrast between the great irrigation schemes that are the glory of this country and those great, dead stone pyramids, the records of infamous government in Egypt!

There are few men, relatively, that realize what national irrigation means, what great work has been done, what gigantic achievements are planned.

The intelligent reader will think for hours upon this great task of reclaiming the earth's surface and build magnificent dreams of the future upon the reclaimed territory.

The real wealth of this earth of ours is WATER. All minerals, our gold and precious stones, compared with the wealth of the water in the nation, are as a broken piece of straw compared with a great farm.

Every bushel of corn, every pound of beef, depends upon water.

The richest farm lands would be as worthless as the desert were the water removed, the desert yield wealth and happiness when water is given to them.

You know how much history and the establishment of civilization have depended upon a natural water supply.

The old civilization and power of Egypt were due to the natural irrigation of the Nile, bringing water and fertile earth mixed, making crops sure. The civilization in Mesopotamia was based on water, on the alluvial deposits of the Tigris and the Euphrates.

Primitive men took the earth and nature as they found them. They prospered where there was water, and they died or fled when water failed.

Man grows greater, becoming gradually a real ruler of this earth, submits to nature and to accident no longer. He refuses to permit the existence of deserts, he refuses to give up any part of his earth to dryness and to death.

Irrigation conducted by the nation is a glorious proof of humanity's advancement. In these great irrigation works we see humanity working as a whole for the benefit of human beings. We see the earth and the power of the human race used to increase wealth, power, happiness and the number of homes—what a change from the days when wealth and power were used in battle, in persecution, in the destruction of men and their homes.

The Great National Work of Irrigation—the Work of Home-Building, of Nation-Building, Earth-Civilizing—Is Among the Greatest Material Tasks of This Age

This year, at the end of this month, there will be held at Albuquerque, in New Mexico, the sixteenth NATIONAL IRRIGATION CONGRESS OF THE UNITED STATES.

The eighty millions of human beings in America will attend that congress in spirit and rejoice in its work, its optimism, its plans for future achievement.

Irrigation means everything to us human beings. Remember that men are not forever going to live cooped up by millions in horrible cities.

The city is a passing feature of our life here, just as this stage, halfway between barbarism and civilization, is a passing stage.

Men have been compelled to crowd into cities, to see their children die or grow up far from the beauty of the earth, BECAUSE INADEQUATE TRANSPORTATION FACILITIES HAVE COMPELLED THE CITY'S CONGESTION.

Marvellous electric power, agencies still undreamed of for distributing population, will soon let the man live far from his city task. He will be as independent of distance as the seagull hunting five hundred miles from its nest.

Soon this earth will be no longer made up of crowded cities and great expanses of uninhabited country.

Our race will be scattered over the earth, as it should be. Every child will grow up among green fields and flowers and see the sky and the sun and breathe pure air. The human race, wealthy, saving its children instead of murdering them, will increase rapidly. We shall have need of all the thousands of millions of acres of land given to us, need of every foot that will be saved by irrigation.

It does our minds good to look at things in a big way. It is inspiring for every man to realize what men can do as a race. Our national power is very great. The power of our race is great enough to be worthy of this planet given to us for our dwelling.

Did you know that already the irrigation work begun by our nation will add to the national territory 15 for homes and cultivation sixty million acres of land?

This is a very great and a very rich country. The people own a hundred millions of acres in their forest reserve—room and wealth for another nation.

This great reserve is held for the benefit of future generations. But its value will be as nothing compared with the increasing value of the nation as a whole, due to irrigation, which not only reclaims lands utterly useless, but multiplies greatly the value of all land.

It is a marvelous age, and we ought to be thankful that we have lived to see such achievements in the field of invention.

And we should keep an expectant mind for what is yet to come. More wonderful discoveries in the realm of science and invention will be brought to the world's notice in the next ten years.

The boat is small and dark. The water is calm with some ripples. In the background, there is a dark, forested shoreline with trees and a small structure or cabin visible on the right. The overall scene is quiet and somewhat somber.

THE wonderful age of the world I live,
The age of battery, coil and wire,
Of gram, and stovew, and motored things place the water of the Colorado River is carried through a siphon under the Gila River to irrigate lands on the other side of the Gila.

At one point a great artificial lake is to be created in a basin in the hills of New Mexico. Another river will be turned into this basin, five mountain gaps will be stopped up, the water will be saved there for the dry season.

Part of the Shoshone River in Wyoming will be used for its course, stored up by a great dam in a canyon, and in the dry season that stor. of water will irrigate 275,000 acres.

The Truckee River in Nevada has been hifted from its bed, carried in a canal thirty-one miles long into another valley, at an expenditure of seven million dollars, irrigating 250,000 acres.

The North Platte River is to have its water wealth stored up by a dam 230 feet high, across a canyon, which will feed numerous canals in the dry season.

And so it goes.

100,000 acres here, 350,000 there—all good, rich land, useless to man from the beginning, now offering wealth and homes almost inconceivable.

"The wealth of the water in our Great Lakes rushing over Niagara and out to sea!

Proves His Title by Taking Into Camp Jack Peach and Ross Martin.

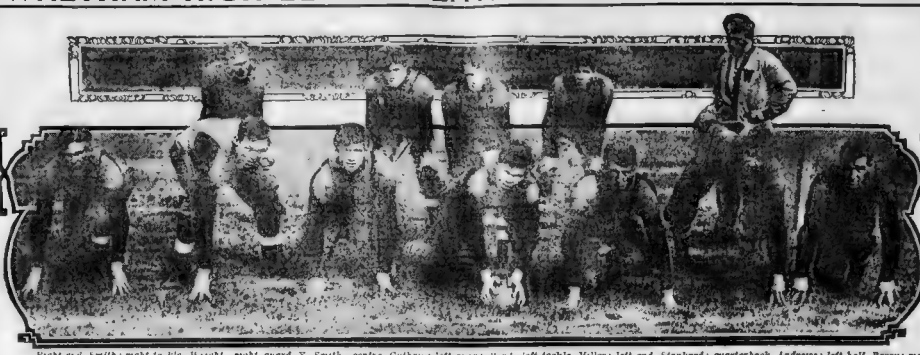

COM. FORBES A SURPRISE Having Been Counted a Fair 2:40 Trotter He Steps a Heat in 34 Seconds.

By ED. COGSWELL.

That the veteran old George is the best of the trotters in the Feelsway Driving Club was proved yesterday in the Feelsway Driving Club at Myrtle Park, where he took into camp the hopped pair Jack Peach and Ross Martin.

President J. L. Brown of the club handled the race very well, and while he dropped the initial heat to the pair in the first heat of 34, yet from that point of the event, he was every master of the situation. Jack Peach tried in the first heat of the Feelsway Driving Club, but he was not able to do so, and he was dropped from the race. The second heat was won by Sir George in 34 seconds, and he was counted a fair 2:40 trotter.

Lynn, Sept. 26.—William LaCroix, the former member of the Lynn Driving Club, who has been president of the club for the regular weekly sessions of the club at Rockdale Park, Falmouth, today, when he announced his withdrawal from the racing field and that he intends disposing of his entire stable of trotters and paces.

Mr. LaCroix was the first president of the driving club and it has been through his strenuous efforts in its behalf that it has been able to maintain its position in the racing field of home racing. It was, therefore, with great surprise and regret that the members received the news that he had decided to quit the business and to devote his time to other pursuits.

HARVARD STRONGEST IN LINE AND WEAKEST IN BACKFIELD

Two More Coaches Out to Help Houghton Develop the Crimson Football Material.

The practice and scrimmage of the Harvard football squad this week have been characterized by a few errors and regarded with some anxiety by the coaches, who are considerably worried over the outcome. Practice has been with more ease and confidence, Coach Houghton, by using the method which he employed to develop the Crimson team, has expected to see the team in the line of play.

Two More Coaches Added.
The thirteen who assisted Houghton last week, Joseph Foster, captain of the 1908 eleven, and Henry Shreve, former captain of the 1907 eleven, have been added to the coaching staff. Foster is a former player of the Harvard football team, and Shreve is a former player of the Harvard football team.

OIL FORBEG RACE

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—No action regarding the claims of drivers who recently took part in the unseasoned twenty-two mile race, which was held at the track at a special meeting of the Associated Drivers' Club, was announced today.

The board decided to amend the rules relative to the use of tires, permitting the use of a single tire on the front wheel and two on the rear. The board also ordered the use of a new kind of tire, which was made by the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co.

It was also announced by Jefferson that the first of the annual meeting will be held later on this month and that the drivers, and participants in the usual round race will be:

Details regarding the Vanderbilt, Jr. Cup race and the Loag and the other races that will be run were discussed at the meeting. It was announced that twenty-two thousand dollars will be paid for the race over fourteen miles of country and Main road included in the Vanderbilt event. This is the same space for an automobile race, and the same space for a horse race.

It was also announced that three-quarters of a mile on the Jericho turnpike, in the vicinity of the old road, will be resurfaced, and that the dangerous turn at the Jericho turnpike, and Woodbury road will be resurfaced. The same is being rounded, making the same quite safe for the drivers. The old road, the old country road across the Hempstead

The Marmion Survived

Made the entire journey of 718 miles without an adjustment or replacement with the motor constantly running and bonnet sealed. Was always under the watchful eye of an observer appointed by viral concern.

The word Marmion stands for speed, endurance, reliability and elegance—the four between the differences we had settled before the American Automobile Association and the Automobile Club of America has accounted for some of the racing troubles although it would appear that there is still likely to be some confusion in the minds of some of the public with respect to the meaning of the word "regulation," and, best of all, the whole late distribution of stamps gave place to it, it may have caused, for the time being, and there should be some interest early of cars in both the Long Island and New York.

In the meantime another race, twenty miles, was scheduled for October 2, a contest of the same kind, but with a representative of race and track throughout the country of a more or less competitive nature, and the same kind of amplified the schedule for the Fall.
The course was a more or less competitive, with no very marked change in

PARSONS WORKED FOR PEOPLE UP TO HOUR OF HIS DEATH

"The Choosing of a Vocation," His Latest Book, Though Unfinished, Remains as His Monument.

Almost until the very end, up to the spirit, at 6:45 every day morning and passed the day in the laboratory. He was a social economic law lecturer and champion of public ownership, was working for the first time in the laboratory. He died last night, will be two weeks for the first time in the laboratory. He died last night, will be two weeks for the first time in the laboratory. He died last night, will be two weeks for the first time in the laboratory.

Channing's "Vocation" is a scientific presentation of the ideas embodied in the "Vocation Bureau." Institute Professor Parsons and his friends were some time back in the "Vocation Bureau." During what proved to be his last illness he may as yet letters a day came to him from the "Vocation Bureau." He was always of knowing more about the "bureau." This encouraged him to harder work on his book than his frail body was capable of.

Professor Parsons had no family. Every day was his brother, sister, son, daughter.

"You mustn't," said the doctors.
"I must," said the patient, "I must. I must."
The spirit," said Professor Parsons's most intimate friend, Ralph Albertson, last night, was willing enough to accept the title of "Vocation." To the left is almost falsified form "The Philosophy of Law" calls for little further comment.

The body of Professor Parsons was forwarded to the Federal Express last night to his residence at Mount Vernon, Miss. Katherine, and Mr. Albertson. The funeral will be held to-morrow afternoon.

A lecturer on law at Boston University since 1902, Professor Parsons was famous for that field and as a social economist the world over. He was a frequent contributor on many topics to the editorial page of the Boston American. His "Lesson on Municipal Ownership," first printed in the Boston Herald, afterwards reprinted Professor Parsons early identified himself with the Independence League in Massachusetts. In 1907 he was glad to be numbered in the People's Lobby, while the league sent to the State House. I was early in that season, unhappily, that the eminent sociologist was taken seriously ill.

Below the average height, frail of form, Professor Parsons was the embodiment of gentleness. He was not much of a fighter. When he was exuberantly indignant, he formed legislative committee or similar tripartite bodies to deal with the various social systems and systematic wrongs. No abuses or tributes were paid to his personal virtues. He was not a leader of men. He was a leader of ideas. He might have been called his advisers.

about his "education school" opened in connection with the Civic Service House in Salem street. His interest in finding out in which way or by what means the world was being deceived and in helping them to start right, may in part have been due to his own experience with a short stay in the Federal Reformatory for Men at Joliet, Ill., from which he was graduated in 1913. His specialty was engineering. He was a member of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, and, although enough of a student to be called a "bookworm," he was also a student of the "book of life."

In his railroad and engineering study he travelled throughout America and Europe, and was a frequent lecturer at various universities and engineering schools.

The largest retail medicine business transacted in any one store in America.

There is no necessity of our commenting on the quality of our own goods, as we have nothing of our own to offer. Our immense trade is due to the fact that we carry a complete assortment of everything in the drug store line, always in the best condition (direct from the manufacturer) and always at the very lowest price at which the goods are obtainable. When you call for a standard make of medicinal or toilet goods, you get just what you ask for. We do not encroach on your time nor impose on your intelligence by trying to sell you something else "just as good." We quote some of the especially good values we are offering:

YOUNG COQUELIN IS MAD, BUT GIVES FRIENDS HOPE.

Confined in Asylum, Once Brilliant Actor Is Slowly Growing Better.

SUSPICIOUS OF BROTHER
Lucid Intervals Occurring More Frequently and of Longer Duration.

Special Cable to Boston American
Paris, Sept. 26.—The mad story of the younger Coquelin's madhouse has at last been made known. Every body knows now that Coquelin is suffering from acute melancholia, and his absence from the theatre is explained by his confinement in a madhouse.
Coquelin the premier appeared for the last time last October in "Le Vaisseau" at the Paris Opéra. He then disappeared from the theatre, and his absence from the theatre is explained by his confinement in a madhouse.
He was taken to a private asylum, where he has been confined for some time. He is now slowly improving, but he still has delusions.
He is suspicious of his friends, and of his brother, Coquelin, who has been his constant companion. He is now slowly improving, but he still has delusions.

MESSAGE NO. 2 HYGENIC FIGURE BUILDING

BACK-RESTING FOR MEDIUM AND SLENDER FIGURES. SELF-REDUCING FOR EVERY TYPE OF STOUT WOMEN.

Every Nemo Corset Does Something for You That No Other Corset Can Do

The wise woman of to-day lives hygienically. Her food is hygienic. Her home is hygienic. Her clothes are hygienic. Even her corsets bring health as well as comfort and style if she wears the "Nemo."

Nemo Corsets Are Hygienic

If you're stout, the Nemo "Self-Reducing" Corset will give you a youthful, graceful figure, and put you as far into the "Director" class as any stout woman ought to go—and will make you healthier.

If you are of slender or medium form, the Nemo "Back-Resting" Corset will give you the flat "figure" in its perfection, relieve your backache, and bring you comfort such as you never had before—and with improved health.

No. 351 $3.50

Antoinette's Pearl is a corset that is perfect for every woman. It is a corset that is perfect for every woman. It is a corset that is perfect for every woman.

No. 318 $3.00

A FEW OF THE "NEMO" HYGIENIC FEATURES—PATENTED AND EXCLUSIVE

1. Nemo Self-Reducing Straps, being firmly affixed to hooks on the front steels, give positive reduction of abdomen and permanent lines of youthful grace.
2. Nemo Relief Straps, which perfectly support the abdomen and make you comfortable.
3. Nemo Double Garters, which, being attached to the Reducing Straps, prevent the flesh from bulging out below the corset.
4. Nemo Back-Resting Straps (in Model 351 only), which give support at the spot you need it most—the small of the back, right over one of the most important nerve-centres in the body.

By our method of securing the utmost steadiness for every figure, with absolute comfort.

There's a Hygienic Nemo for Every Figure—Stout, Slender or Medium

SCHOOLHOUSE ROW ENDS IN COURT CASE

Springfield, Vt., Sept. 26.—A large crowd of citizens of Springfield and surrounding towns gathered here today to hear the evidence in the case of Judge E. B. Flynn, who was recently elected State Senator from this district, and who is charged with the construction of this case. The case was brought on by the fact that the new schoolhouse, which was built by the town, was not in accordance with the provisions of the act governing the construction of schoolhouses. The case was brought on by the fact that the new schoolhouse, which was built by the town, was not in accordance with the provisions of the act governing the construction of schoolhouses.

RAIN ONLY HOPE TO SAVE GREAT FORESTS

Cambridge, Mass., Sept. 26.—Rain alone will put a stop in the forest fires which are raging in the State of New York, and which have caused the forests to burn like powder.
